THE MEADOWBROOK RACES.

STEEPLECHASE CONTESTS ON WILL-IAM C. WHITNEY'S COUNTRY PLACE.

GOOD, LIVELY SPORT WATCHED BY MANY SOCIETY PEOPLE-WINNERS OF THE

VARIOUS CONTESTS. Hempstead, Long Island, April 29 (Special).-So clety gathered in force to-day at the picturesque country-seat of William C. Whitney, on the Wheat-Hills to witness the annual spring races of the Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association, which has ecome one of the most popular racing associations in this section of the country. The day was perfect, and a large number of society people from Brooklyn and Manhattan, and representatives of all the hunt clubs in this section of the country, were in attendance. The affair has always been a prominent social feature of the hunt clubs in the vicinity of New-York, and to-day's eclipsed any of

All the races started and finished from the top of a high hill, almost opposite Mr. Whitney's countryseat, where they could be plainly seen by Mrs. Whitney, who is an invalid. Four of the seven races were over a steeplechase course of three miles of spiendid hunting country. Almost every portion of the course could be seen by the large number of spectators with scarcely moving from one position on the top of the Whitney hill. One end of the hill was reserved for drags and four-inhands, which drove to the grounds from all the hands, which drove to the grounds from an esurrounding country-seats with large parties of guests. They were all drawn up in one long line, and from the top of these vehicles many society people witnessed the contests. The pony races and the open contest for the farmers of Nassau County were held on Mr. Whitney's private racetrack. In terest in the latter contest was very keen among the prominent farmers of the county, and it was ratched with considerable enthusiasm by all pres-

The races throughout were warmly contested and extremely interesting. Several croppers occurred in almost every contest, but beyond a slight shaking up not a serious accident of any description marred the pleasure of the day's sport. The turf was in excellent condition, and excellent time was made. In the first race, while putting his hunter over the first jump, both of the stirrup straps of Jockey Smith broke, almost unseating the rider. However, nith remained in the saddle, and put his hunter very cleverly over every jump of the three-mile course, and won the race by several lengths, amid course, and won the race by several lengths, amid considerable cheering. Almost as soon as the horses left the post in the second race Mr. Wharton, who was riding Little Bo Peep, came a cropper, and fell from the saddle. Jack Dandy was leading the field, and during the remainder of the race Mr. Wharton's mount followed the winner of the course, and took every jump in a very clever manner.

the course, and took every jump in a very clever thanner.

The third race, for the Whitney Cup, was marked by clever riding by the riders of Trillion and Cock by clever riding by the riders of Trillion and Cock Bobin, who were almost abreast in the first two miles. Then Hayes, who was riding Trillion, managed to gain a lead, and won the race.

Among those who witnessed the races were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kernochan, Mr. and Mrs. C. Albert Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Morgan, E. Willard Roby, Mr. and Mrs. Foxhall P. Keene, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. R. Kennedy, Miss May Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, ir. There is no Good-wood in America, but there is a Westbury. There is no Duke of Richmond, but there is a William C. Whitney, whose lavish entertainment of the large gathering at his farm at Westbury surely equalled if it did not excel the best efforts of the Duke of Richmond. The scene was one long to be rememness the cavallers of Long Island and elsewhere do feats of daring in races across a stiff country over obstacles worthy of the Grand National Course at Aintree. Mr. Whitney left nothing undone to make every-thing enjoyable. In a large marquee tent a sumpt-None were neglected, for Mr. Whitney was here, there and everywhere to see that all were cared for. The management of the racing was perfect in all its details, although H. C. Crickmore smiled as often as he frowned at the intenious simplicity of some of the riders when they weighed out for the races. Clarence H. Mackay, Foxhall P. Keene, H. K. Vingut, W. Jay, Stanley Mortimer, O. W. Bird and H. G. Page managed the details so successfully that the programme of seven races was run promptly.

that the programme of seven races was run promptly.

The starter, E. C. La Montague, used no barrier, yet every start was a good one, and not a word of fault was found with his efforts. Harry Smith, of Worcester, won the honors as a horseman by winning the first race with St. Rudolph and the second race with Jack Dandy. Foxhall P. Keene showed that he has lost none of his skill in the saddle by winning the last race as he pleased with his crack polo pony, Mountain Maid. Clarence H. Mackay aided in the general success of the day's sport by keeping constant watch of the proceedings, materially assisting Mr. Crickmore, who wondered why men asked to be weighed in without their saddles and tackle.

Colonel Thomas P. Ochiltree, who was present, said: "This is indeed a pleasure. Here is real sport under the most favorable conditions. A vote of thanks should be given to Mr. Whitney, for affairs of this kind will do more to improve the quality of racing in America, than any amount of conversation in Delmonico's or the Waldorf-Astoria."

quality of racing in America, than any amount of conversation in Delmonico's or the Waldorf-Astoria.

Samuel Hildreth, who trains for Mr. Whitney, invited a few of his friends to inspect the stables and to view the horses. Although the stabling in use at present is first-class in every particular and in perfect order, a new stable is being erected that is to be equipped with every modern convenience. Plaudit, as exclusively reported in The Tribune is suffering from muscular rheumatism. Black Venus and Mr. Clay have trouble with their wind, but Jean Beraud is all that anybody could desire as a racer. He had a trial yesterday morning. The time was not made public, but some idea may be formed by the fact that Mr. Whitney intends to have the track remeasured and has sent his watch to this city to be tested. Hurly Burly, George Keene and Tolucca are all in excellent shape. Everybody with the best interests of the turf at heart sincerely wishes that success will crowd Mr. Whitney's efforts to secure a stable of first-class horses.

Richard Clawson, who will wear the Whitney colors this year, created a favorable impression by his excellent manners and modest demeanor. All the troublesome complications about Clawson's contract have been settled, and the popular lightweight will be seen in the saddle at Aqueduct this week. There will be another day's racing given by Mr. Whitney in the fall, when a brilliant programme will be run off and an effort made to

TRACK ATHLETICS.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR BROAD JUMP BROKEN BY KRAENZLEIN.

YALE'S ATHLETES WIN SEVERAL RACES-MANY

Philadelphia, April 29.-Yale carried off the hor ors at the relay races held under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field to-day, the wearers of the blue winning the onemile, two-mile and four-mile races. Although Pe sylvania was disappointed in the outcome of these events, she is happy because one of her men now holds the American broad-jump record. A. C. Kraenzlein, who is also the American champion hurdler, jumped 24 feet 31/2 inches, breaking the American record of 23 feet 87/8 inches, held by Myer Prinstein, of Syracuse University. The latter was also entered, but the best he could do was 23 feet

Over eight thousand persons attended the carnival of sports. It was a great success, over eighty preparatory schools and colleges being represented. The greatest race of the day was the one-mile llege relay championship. There were three teams entered in the event, Yale, Pennsylvania and Chicago University. It was a most exciting con-test between the first two teams. Gleason, of Yale, beat out Cook, of Pennsylvania, in the first quarter. The runners in the next quarter were Luce, for Yale, and Kraenzlein, for Pennsylvania. The latter made up the ground lost by his predecessor, but soon played out, and when the third of men took up the running Yale had a lead of twenty yards. The final quarter was exciting. Tewkesbury, for Pennsylvania, by a magnificent dash, almost caught Boardman, Yale's fourth runner. The distance between them was too great, however, and the Yale man won the quarter and however, and the Yale man won the quarter the race by about ten yards. The Chicago University men could not stand the great pace, and were out of it after a half-mile had been run.

In the two-mile and four-mile relay champion-ships Yale's men got a good lead early and won both events easily. The one-mile relay race between Columbia. Cornell and Lafavette was also a good contest, the Columbia team winning by a small warsh.

Drisler School was represented by six players and Berkeley School by three, the other five being scattered about among the other academies preparing boys for Columbia. The struggle soon narrowed down to a duel between Drisier and Berkeley, and each school had two players left unbeaten when the semi-finals were Wylle Grant, the six-foot son of Louis J. Grant, had a close battle with Howard Plummer, of Berkeley, who won the Columbia interschelastic championship last season, but finally wore him down and captured the second set rather easily. Berkeley evened up matters in the other semi-final, for young Lewis Hughes beat the other Drisler representative and worked his way into the Drisler representative and worked his way into the Grant in the final match, and the Drisler boy's strength soon crushed his hopes.

The championship and first prize finally fell to Grant, and he will represent the Columbia section in the final interschoinstic series for the National championship at Newport next August, when he will meet the winners from the Harvard, Yale, Princeton. Pennsylvania, Bowdoin and University of Chicago sections.

The first, a five-bird sweepstake, brought out a dozen contestants. G. L. Gibbs, of West Long Branch, and J. E. Green, the Hollywood Gun Club crack, killing straight, divided the purse. In the second sweep, at three birds, six contestants tied, Eugene Magee and Frank Goodwin dividing the purse on the shoot-off. DWYER AND MAHER WERE IN FRONT AT AQUEDUCT.

MICHAEL AND DANIEL HAD A LUCKY AFTER-

The sport at Aqueduct yesterday was not of high class, but those who journeyed to the track were treated to some happenings of a novel sort. Strangest of these incidents was the success of "Danny" Maher. He had four mounts, and with all four was first at the finish. His work was far the best he has shown this season. There were close quarters for him that might have brought ual exhibitions of fear, and he was compelled to do his best with Shoreham and Harry Reed. But his courage was sufficient yesterday. both mounts it was his ability to outfinish his competitors that enabled him to reach the line first.

Perhaps the most surprising feature of Maher's jockeyship was his victor with Dan Rice. While at the post his horse was kicked by St. Lorenzo, and blood poured from the wound in a way that made it look as if the injury were serious. owners of Dan Rice asked permission to withdraw him, but the stewards, after an examination, decided that he should go to the post. Those who had bet on Dan Rice were by this time willing to sell out cheaply, for they reasoned that Maher would not take any chances with a horse that was not only bleeding, but was lame. These calcula-tions, however, were not correct. Maher rushed Dan Rice clear of his field in the first furlong, and kept him in the van to the end. It was an exhibition of grit and pluck that few looked for. M. F. Dwyer's colors were carried by three of the tion of grit and pluck that few looked for.

M. F. Dwyer's colors were carried by three of the six winners—Greatland. Shoreham and old Harry Reed. Greatland had no difficulty in earning his laurels; but as to the others the winnings must be classed as "lucky money." Greatland ran for the first time as a three-year-old, and some rumors that he had shown a disposition to quit in his work induced the layers to offer a price about as liberal as it should have been.

Maher waited with Greatland until the homestretch was reached. Then he moved up, and at the close he was just galloping. Dr. Parker, who had been the pacemaker, lasted long enough to beat Roysterer out for the second money.

"Johnny" Campbell furnished one of the favorites for the second race in Mrs. C. She was played down from 20 to 1 to 3 to 1. With her he introduced a rider from California named Shaw. The filly may succeed later but the jockey is not likely to create any commotion. The race was won by Lottie Sheville. Spencer's clever handling had everything to do with her winning.

The third race, a handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, was captured by Dan Rice. He was a decided favorite before the accident, but those who then cared to back him found all sorts of prices. The injury looked more dangerous than it really was. He made all the running, and won easily.

Gaze, who had only ninety-seven pounds to carry in the Roekaway Stakes, won in a romp, but it was a rather costly victory for her owner, as Frank Gardner made him pay $1,065 to retain her.

Shoreham's margin at the finish of the fifth race was a short head, and the best of judges will agree that both McCue, on Queen Anne, and H. Martin, on Big Gun, should have beaten him. Martin's finish was disgracefully weak.

Again in the last race was riding responsible for the result. Harry Reed won by a neck from Orden!, on whome O'Leary rode most stupidly and carelessly. O'Leary is beyond question one of the most stupid, careless and foolish jockeys who ever sat in a saddle. He ought to be a steward.

The visitors resmed to feel that they would have an easy time of it, and their playing was of the overconfident sort. Pratt was inclined to be wild except when hits made meant runs, and then he had the home made meant runs, and then he had the players at his mercy.

The New-York team had men on bases in every inning but when hits were needed they could not be made, and in consequence the New-York team had thirteen men left on 'asses. O'Brien did the effective batting for the home team, scoring alone half the number of hits made. Lajoic made a hit every time that he went to the bat. Lajoic and Gleason carried off the fielding honors. The visitors took the lead in the opening inning. Score:

feated Cornell this afternon by a score of 3 to 6 in a brilliantly played contest. The game was in great part a pitchers' battle latween Hillebrand and Young, the former being the most effective. Neither team batted hard, but the fielding was brilliant throughout the game. Bedford's work at and base and Kafer's catching were the leading features of Princeton's work in the field. Frinceton scored in the first two innings, but after that Young's pitching was effective. Hillebrand was stendy with men on bases. PREHISTORIC RUINS IN KANSAS.

From The Kansas City Journal.

Before the recent meeting of the Kansas State Historical Society W. S. Williston, professor of geology in the Kansas State University, read an exceedingly interesting paper on some ancient and prehistoric ruins found in Western Kansas. Professor Williston's attention was first attracted to these ruins in 1874, and on several occasions since he has dug in them and gathered such relies as might tend to throw some light upon their history. The ruins are those of buildings constructed of stones and prairie sod, and their location is in the walley of Beaver Creek, Scott County, some ten miles north of Scott City. When found the ruins presented the appearance of earth mounds, thickly covered by buffalo grass, and, while the mounds had long been known to hunters and settlers, no one had an idea that they covered the site of an ancient town until a prairie doe, in disging his hole in one of the mounds, brought to the surface some grains of corn and some pleces of pottery.

Then excavations were made by Professor Willston, who first opened a mound to find that it covered the remains of a house forty feet square, divided into four rooms. The partition waits were plainly marked, and sections of them were taken out covered with native plaster. The floors were found to be covered evenly with the same material, and the whole building had evid sitly been constructed with considerable care and skill. Scattered should be a large chapel, in which was found a stoge after and cach kernel stood out by itself without culching its neighbor.

Other mounds revealed similar ruins, one being that of a large chapel, in which was found a stoge after and each kernel stood out by itself without culching its neighbor.

Other mounds revealed similar ruins, one being that of a large chapel, in which was found a stoge after and cross, and it is evident that once upon a disequile a village existed upon the site. Pursaing the search further, fields were found that once had been worked, o
